

Taskly – Project Management, Your Way

Taskly Digital Wireframes

The following wireframes illustrate the basic flow we envision for a single Taskly feature: creating a new project. This flow is highly representative of several similar tasks, such as creating tasks, adding new users, and building teams.

Questions and Comments

Please direct all questions and comments toward Taskly's design team.

Ian Alton – Principal Designer

Ian worked for many years as a technical writer, information architect, and documentation department supervisor before becoming a user experience designer with a passion for creating excellent user experiences. Ian is the Principal Designer and President of Taskly.

Roger Siegfried – Technical Lead

Roger is a fictional person who does not exist. As such, he never attended school, and has never held a job. Despite this apparent drawback, Roger is nonetheless an integral member of our team. He is both ruggedly handsome and a gifted software developer, responsible for bringing to life Taskly's great user experience.
